

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is characterized by including: an information collection and provision system which receives use information on a state of use of plural medical apparatuses set in medical facilities and apparatus information on the medical apparatuses themselves, which are acquired by the plural medical apparatuses, via a network and stores the information; and a client terminal which accesses the information collection and provision system, sends a kind and a display format of the use information and the apparatus information to the information collection and provision system as setting information, and receives information obtained on the basis of the setting information from the information collection and provision system and displays the information. According to the constitution, a medical information and collection system with which a user is capable of obtaining desired information in a desired format can be provided.